

A Pair of Porcelain Figures

Circa: Circa 1700 - 1730

37 cm

14.5669291338583

Circa 1700 - 1730

Porcelain

37 x 0 cm (14<sup>5</sup>/<sub>8</sub> x 0 inches)

Kakiemon Porcelain, Polychrome Painted

Depiction of a male Kabuki actor couple, finely modeled, wearing wide, richly decorated robes with a V-neck in typical Kakiemon color scheme.

Kakiemon refers to certain Japanese porcelains and their European imitations, which were inspired by them. The name derives from the family business of Sakaida Kakiemon near the city of Arita, Hizen Province, which cultivated its own distinctive style. The Kakiemon style is characterized by sketchy lines, watercolor-like application of color, and asymmetrical compositions that leave large areas unpainted.

Kakiemon porcelain is a subgenre of Arita porcelain.

Literature:

C. J. A. Jörg, Fine & Curious, Japanese Export Porcelain in Dutch Collection, Hotei Publishing 2003,
Fig. 354 – 355, pp. 281 – 282;